

NET Team Building Program for Design Build Projects

This formal team building program is specifically tailored for commercial design-build projects. Its intention is to create an atmosphere of trust, teamwork and open communication among all project participants. The program has proven effective in building constructive project relationships such as learning each other's job responsibilities, personal and work goals, project concerns, and work habits. The program was successfully applied to the configuration of space in a new office building in downtown Boston.
