

Construction Worker Team Building

This team building effort is based on the idea that if employees are given the time and resources, they can improve their work environment. Every person working on a project has to be involved if a program for a construction project will address the human element of quality. 15 minute toolbox meetings devoted to team building are held weekly. This meeting is designed for interactive discussions and suggestions. All suggestions are referred to the Teambuilding Team who investigates the suggestions and provides written responses before the next week's meeting. Tangible results are safety statistics that exceed targets, and attendance and turnover rates that are better than goals set. The Project Management Team is committed to resolve problems and manages the project with an open door policy.
